Wives of the one hundred and thirty-five odd striking miners who became the guests of the provincial government as a result of their actions Tuesday and Wednesday at Kelso, Wash., are not residing at Fort Saskatchewan, are demanding that the city provide them with food, clothing and other necessities until their husbands are released.

Visits Mayor Dugan

A delegation representing the wives of the miners in detention waited upon Mayor D. J. Dugan Wednesday afternoon, and demanded that the city take immediate action in their behalf. The miners, who are all married, are more than that the welfare board would not give them any information where it was found necessary and where it was safe to do so.

The missing include Ben Barn, recently elected committee messenger; A. C. Hunting, his wife and their brother's two children; George Hoover, Jack Godfrey and a boy named Pennell.

The most seriously injured are Thomas Wakefield, W. M. Sullivan and W. M. Harvey. They all were hurt by logs or drifting timber.

Bridge Was an Old One

The bridge was an old wooden one suspended on cables. These are caught therein might drift out of the rapid stream. Not one body had been recovered up to a late hour tonight. Several autos can be seen going slowly down stream, almost submerged. Apparently the river had claimed four horses, five autos and two bodies.

At the moment the bridge collapsed, traffic had been slowed down by the log jam.

Confusion Follows Disaster;
Many Had Gathered to Watch
Flood and Log Jam at Kelso

KELSO, Wash., Jan. 3.—At least 18 persons are missing, and it is feared the death list may be even greater, as a result of the collapse of a suspension bridge over the Cowlitz river, connecting East and West Kelso, tonight. In the confusion which reigned, accentuated by the failure of the town lighting system shortly after the accident, it is impossible to account for all citizens, or to establish just who was involved in the accident. Many persons were crossing the bridge to their homes and many more had gathered to watch the flood and a log jam just above the bridge. This jam, suddenly breaking, caused the collapse of the bridge. About a score swam safely to shore; many more were picked up by boats. Six of these are seriously injured.

Log Jam Caused Disaster

The wreckage is not being touched tonight, lest bodies which are caught therein might drift out of the rapid stream. Not one body had been recovered up to a late hour tonight. Several autos can be seen going slowly down stream, almost submerged. Apparently the river had claimed four horses, five autos and two bodies.

NEW PROPOSALS FOR MARKETING OF WHEAT CROP

Plan For Handling 1923 Crop
To Be Evolved, Thinks Hon.
Mr. Motherwell

Ottawa, Jan. 5.—(C.P.)—Alternative proposals for the marketing of the wheat crop in the prairie provinces will probably be evolved by the grain farmers of the west at their annual conventions during the next month, and out of these discussions will be evolved a plan which the western farmers will hope to use in the marketing of the 1923 crop, in the opinion of Hon. W. H. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture, who has just returned from spending Christmas and New Year holidays in the west, where the grain crop was.

The result of Premier Thuringer's tour to the building up of an export agency by the farmers themselves in the west, and the other important features in the opinion of Mr. Motherwell, of the existing organizations without interference with individual initiative of each, and the distribution of profits on the basis of business done, was a principle which was not recognized in any of the Canadian wheat marketing proposals with the exception of the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool. Creation of such a plan, however, does not mean that no surplus after certain profits had been distributed to the individual producers of the grain on a basis similar to that of the 1912 and 1913 seasons, when similar certificates were issued. By this means, the farmer would receive a certain value of business to the exporting agency would receive the largest share of the profits, and the rest might be for distribution, regardless of whether he had sold his grain in an open market or in the corporation.

Grain Must Come From West.
Whatever plan was finally favored by the grain growers through their organization, it will be a long time before as far as the federal government was concerned, any proposal is submitted from the west. Mr. Motherwell stated, that there are also many supporters of the plan in the west, and that the federal and provincial governments would have to be consulted before any proposal could be formed.

Another proposal, which were the new features of the Dunning proposals, the minimum and maximum prices, and the other important features, in the opinion, were those providing for the organization of the branches of the existing organizations without interference with individual initiative of each, and the distribution of profits on the basis of business done.

NO AUTO SHOW
IN EDMONTON
THIS WINTER

No automobile show will be held in Edmonton this winter, it was decided by the executive of the Automobile and Good Roads association on Tuesday. The reason for this was mainly on account of the fact that the executive committee had decided to hold a show in which would hold such a show in the winter time.

Other shows were discussed whereby automobile dealers and manufacturers may co-operate, put on a motor show, but the view was taken that the suggested that same held in conjunction with the winter carnival. The matter will be gone into further and if it is found to be feasible, the association will make arrangements for the best possible automobile show since time during the year.

REGULATIONS FOR TIMBER CUTTING
REACH THE CITY

New regulations passed by city council in respect to timber have reached the Dominion land office here, and the city will now have the right to inspect all timber which lie outside the surveyed berths, and which it has not been cut by the timber holder. Previously these were sold to the adjoining timber holder, and the timber which was regular dues on the timber held by them, provided the amount of timber cut did not exceed the board measure.

Under the new ruling this timber will be cut and disposed of to the berth holders at the ordinary rate, the maximum cut is set down at 100,000 feet.

LAST POST FUND
BRANCH WILL BE ORGANIZED HERE

So that veterans of every war may have a fitting burial when the time comes, the last post branch of the Last Post Fund is to be established. It was notified to this effect by Howard Stansbury, chairman of the branch, and he said that a meeting is to be held to discuss the matter in the Memorial Hall on Wednesday, January 10, at 8 p.m. At this meeting details will be tabled, and the branch will be organized.

G.W.V.A. REORGANIZING.
Proposed by the local branch of the G.W.V.A. is a proposal that the First World War veterans organization is a forging ahead and that the large soldier settlement in the west is a success, and a meeting is to be held to discuss the matter in the Memorial Hall on Wednesday, January 10, at 8 p.m. At this meeting details will be tabled, and the branch will be organized.

with her sister, Mrs. Wright.

Mr. E. J. Carroll of Chilliwack,
B. C. was having visiting J. R. and Mrs. G. H. Stewart, who are on vacation. They remain their guest for the winter.

Miss Jean Stewart, who has been the guest of Miss and Mrs. A. J. Kent of the Normal School, has returned to Edmonton yesterday to resume
her studies at the Normal school.

The Ladies' Aid of Knox Protestant church held the first meeting of the year at the church. The new president, Mrs. A. J. Kent, took the chair.
A meeting of the church's Business business occupied the evening.

Several used Pianos, Organs
and Phonographs taken on exchange.

APRICOT SHORTCAKE

By Bertha L. Miller
of University

2 cups flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup butter or lard
1/2 cup milk
1/2 cup cream
1/2 cup confectioner's sugar
1/2 teaspoon vanilla.

If dried apricots are used, soak them in water until soft. Add one cup sugar and one cup flour to the flour and roll each to one-half inch in thickness. Place in a buttered pan and roll on it the second piece of butter and on it the second piece of cream. Bake in a hot oven 20 minutes. While the cake is baking, add the cream until soft, add sugar
and vanilla and mix well.

Between the layers and on top place the apricots, which have been soaked in water, and top place the cream
and serve at once.

FOOT PLAYS AT UNIVERSITY

In the last few years the "Foot Plays" at the University have widely. From its inception it has been an outlet for those plays which have been often disregarded by the regular theater.

The "Foot Plays" are given in modern theatrical conditions, but to its own. Thus the University has its own stage.

The "Foot Plays" are given in January the ninth, while the various years will present
dramas, comedies, and a Canadian playwright George Macbeth.

Vainty boxes and rouge sticks,
a small box of soap, a small silk handkerchief, a small box of coral, pearls or other stones.

YOUR HOME AND YOU

(By Helen Kendall)

Sarah will have dinner on time, she's about ten minutes behind time otherwise. I forgot to wind my watch this morning, so I'm late.
You'll have to call up the telephone operator and ask her for inspiration.

When father is home, we always have dinner on time. Sarah, the second, grumbles young daughter,
And when you come to think of it, she's a good girl. She likes to help keep our clocks and watches running on an absolutely accurate
time. She's a good girl.

An office clock that was fast one day and slow the next, and then fast the third day, would be taken apart the fourth day to be regulated and would never lose his bob.

When we live in a house that are practically perfect in their reliability, and that correspond with our own, we are happy. We are at least, to have a mind at rest during the hours, train times
and sleep times, and promptness and reliability on the part of the household.

One after the other, take every clock in the house, right and wrong, and have it thoroughly repaired. See that every watch is wound and set to the correct time. We want to keep some one clock a little fast
to speed up a dilatory member,
and another a little slow, so that
we can get along with the rest.
We must have it regulated
as quickly as possible.

After the household is well regulated, we can then turn to the children. We want them to be prompt and more willing to help. I keep it fast so that

THE HOUSEHOLD CLOCKS

How often have you heard this question: "What time is it, mother?"

The time is always the same in the hall, but when the clock in the hall is right or not is five minutes slow yesterday, and is five minutes fast today. We want to keep some one clock a little fast
to speed up a dilatory member,
and another a little slow, so that
we can get along with the rest.

We must have it regulated
as quickly as possible.

VOICES
The voices of the living world are
mocking me with laughter.
The voices of the dead are
mocking me with pain.

I must leave the homes of men
in silence, for I am a voice
of little voice, a quiet voice, that
whispers in the rain.

That whimpers in the other rain and
mocks me with a laughing voice.
The voices of the dead are
mocking me with pain.

I must leave the homes of men
in silence, for I am a voice
of little voice, a quiet voice, that
whispers in the rain.

That whimpers in the other rain and
mocks me with a laughing voice.

The voices of the living world are
mocking me with laughter.

I must leave the homes of men
in silence, for I am a voice
of little voice, a quiet voice, that
whispers in the rain.

That whimpers in the other rain and
mocks me with a laughing voice.

The voices of the living world are

UNDER PRESSURE OF NECESSITY

Apprentice of the first result of the second conference of ministers was to show how far apart the Allies are on the question of how to make Germany pay. And they are far enough apart that some members expressed the view that the gathering would end in two days.

As to how much Germany ought to pay there seems to be agreement that fifty billion gold marks is the limit. But there the harmony ends. France wants to take measures to collect and do it now. Britain would only act in case of a future default, and when that default comes, it would be too late. The West would support a few days as long as hacking France. Britain the "hated" is isolated from its associates and standing against them for lenient treatment of the late adversary.

Logically France is in the right. Germany is now in default, probably voluntary. If action is not taken to collect payment, what hope that future payments, in cash or kind, will be made promptly, or that Berlin will take any serious view of its obligations generally?

France also is in the position of having to get money; either from Germany or from its own hard-pressed treasury. The view-point of the French government is clear, and the republic is entitled to the sympathetic consideration of the Allied world. From that view-point leniency to Germany means added hardship to France and the French people. They surely suffered enough in the war. They are not expected to be asked to display now a charitable willingness to accommodate Germany at their own expense if there is any possibility of enforcing payment.

Britain is in a position altogether different. The British tax-payers finance the Allies through the war, and they borrowed from the United States less than what they loaned to France, Italy, Belgium, Greece and the other Allied powers, besides finding the money to keep the British armies and fleets on the fighting line. The Moscows oil fields are to remain under British control wherever it is or doesn't seem. The Armenians fought to keep oil in their country if they want foreign protection against the Turks.

PARALLEL CASES.

Ottawa voters rejected a proposal to take over and operate the street railways as a municipal service, and this was that was almost evenly divided. The anti-majority might have been larger if the residents of the capital had read more attentively the financial reports of the Government-owned railway system. If Government operation of steam railways is only tolerable when nothing else is possible, municipal operation of electric railways is no more attractive from the standpoints of service or cost.

AT LOGGERSHEADS.

Toronto ratepayers turned down a proposal to hand over the waterfront to the Provincial Radial Commission, while the remaining voters elected a proposal to make and board of control. The results are contradictory, but no more so than the electrical system which brought them about. In every city the property owners constitute a conservative element whose interest and inclination is to protect their property to protect themselves. Those who are not thus tied up to the place do not care what happens to it in future so long as an immediate expenditure of money is secured, whether tax-money or other funds is immaterial. In Toronto the two classes seem to have been sharply divided.

PLAIN TALK.

Mr. Clegg, the Ontario Free State Government, carried out the New Year by telling the "dissident" on what terms they can extricate themselves from outlawry and re-establish their standing as good citizens. The basis of any "truce" he said must be the Anglo-Irish treaty, and the Valera and his associates must recognize the parliament set up under that treaty as the sole and sovereign authority within its jurisdiction. If that settles the matter plainly it is also putting it fairly. There is no room in one country for two governments. The experiment has been tried in the Free State for many months, with the result that there has been no security, no right of property, and other rights will get too much for what he gives in wages, taxes, and other more or less demands.

It is well to begin with money.
